Synopsis About this title This new book by Dorothy Heard, Brian Lake and Una McCluskey, brings together a theory of instinctive human behavior, suggested by Heard and Lake in their previous book The Challenge of Attachment for Caregiving a new conceptualization of the self; and it makes close links with research undertaken by McCluskey into the dynamics of the careseeking-caregiving relationship in adult life, as well as discusses the new form of therapeutic interventions with groups, which she has developed. This is a revised edition of an important title originally published in J: Ablex.

She has written extensively on individuals, couple, family and group systems Daniel Hughes. All children need love, but for troubled children, a loving home is not always .
