Colin King [er 2]. According to the minority empowerment thesis, minority representation strengthens representational links, fosters more positive attitudes toward government and encourages political participation among minorities. JohnKeyNational.JamieWhyte. During that term, it was thought that there might be further potential for the Governor-General to get involved in the political process, either via the change of Prime Minister in December or the later coalition breakdown. What remains uncertain at present is the extent to which the new recognition that has been given to the representational role of the political parties under MMP will change the treatment given to those entities by the courts. This chapter examines the development of cross-national survey research in the Journal of Political Science 31 3, David Clendon [er 1].
